Supervisor Yaroslavsky made the following revised statement:

“The Los Angeles County Department of Health Services (DHS) conducted a Federally funded study on HIV prevalence and risk behaviors among patrons of two bathhouses in Los Angeles County. As part of the Los Angeles Bathhouse Study, DHS staff surveyed bathhouse patrons on HIV risk behavior and conducted HIV/AIDS and STD testing of patrons. Results of the study show high-risk sexual behavior among bathhouse patrons who are primarily men who have sex with men (MSM), putting them at greater risk for infection of HIV/AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases. The study found HIV prevalence of 11% among the bathhouse patrons who were tested, which is higher than the HIV prevalence found in other HIV/AIDS testing sites. High-risk sexual behavior is also occurring at other venues that cater to MSM, such as sexual encounter clubs, which exist in various jurisdictions in the County. This suggests that there may be HIV/AIDS and other STD transmissions not only among patrons of bathhouses, but also among patrons of these other venues.

“For the past two years, the Department of Health Services’ Office of AIDS Programs and Policy has contracted with community service providers to conduct HIV testing and counseling in bathhouses and other establishments and to appoint a liaison to collaborate with the owners and operators of these establishments on HIV and STD risk reduction efforts. Despite these efforts, the study’s finding of 11% HIV prevalence in bathhouse patrons who were tested suggests that our HIV/AIDS and STD prevention and treatment efforts must be strengthened to address the environment in which high risk sexual behavior occurs.”
